Assistive Technology Fair Wraps Up

Mika Clopten

Contributing Writer

As part of Disability Awareness Week, the Disability Resource Center hosted an Assistive Technology Fair on Wednesday, Sept. 20th in the South City Campus atrium. The Assistive Technology Fair was to raise awareness at Salt Lake Community College about how technology is advancing to further help students with disabilities.

The technology showcased can benefit everyone, not just those with disabilities.

“Everybody can benefit from the Assistive Technology Fair because it shows how people with disabilities adapt to the communities,” says High School Transition Accessibility Advisor, Daniel Dewitt. “Nobody is a loser, everyone is a winner.”

There were about a dozen booths all highlighting different resources and opportunities. A few resources that were available were the Disability Law Center, which helps people with disabilities with their legal troubles, and Columbus Next Work, which provides and guides autistic individuals and their families through skills training to job placement. There were also booths like Kostopulos Dream Foundation, also known as Camp K, which provides opportunity for people with disabilities and special needs to gain access and enjoy their community.

The Disability Resource Center provides access to other valuable resources as well. They offer adaptive equipment, alternative text materials, assistive software, testing accommodations and more. For more information, visit the DRC offices at Taylorsville/Redwood, Jordan and South City campuses.

Lady Bruins come out of hibernation.

SALT LAKE CITY, Utah – The Salt Lake Community College Women's Basketball team is back on the court and looking to have a great upcoming season. The Bruins Women's Basketball team, coached by head coach Betsy Specketer and assistant coaches Katie Walker and Marcilina Grayer, will open their season with the SLCC Jamboree on October 20 at 9 am .

The Lady Bruins are coming off of a great last season with an overall record of 30-6 and a conference record of 14-2. The team also ended the previous season with their fourth consecutive Scenic West Athletic Conference, which put them as the top seed in the Region 18 tournament where they won both of their games.

For this upcoming season the Bruins are looking to be just as, if not more successful than they were last season. The Bruins welcome back their top scorer, sophomore Tia Hay who they expect to have a stellar season this year. SLCC Women's Basketball picked up some new fresh-faced freshman including Karolina Fardrhonsova, Kiarra Gasu, Ashley Scoggin, Miki'ala Maio, Malia Brown, and Emma Villas Gomis. All of these newcomers look promising for the upcoming season.

"Last year the team had a great run in the National Tournament, so this year we are all just looking forward to going back and bringing home the title," said rookie sophomore Jamaica Martin.

Library Services

Dean Steed

Contributing Writer

The Salt Lake Community College Library provides a variety of services in order to help students succeed here at SLCC. From the online library to the on-campus libraries, the resources can help you with many things, from academics to the internet. One service they offer students is training and support for your ePortfolio. The staff at the resource desk can take drop-ins or you can make an appointment to help get that ePortfolio up to par. They also offer help utilizing their database in order to find the scholarly resources your papers require. These services alone make writing a research paper or perfecting your ePortfolio both easier and more manageable. The SLCC Library also allows students to check out free Wi-Fi hotspots if they do not have Internet access at home. These hotspots allow students the comfort of doing research, homework, accessing canvas, or just surfing the web from the comfort of their home. A hotspot device allows you to connect multiple devices to the Internet. This includes smartphones, laptops, and tablets. The hotspot is mobile so you can connect to the Internet from just about anywhere you want to go. To gain access to a hotspot, you will need to go to the Redwood Markosian Library at the Taylorsville campus and check one out from the Reference Desk. A SLCC One Card is required if you want to check one out. Once you have a hotspot, you can keep it for 28 days before having to return it or recheck it out, assuming there is availability. The Reference Desk stated that there is a short waitlist for hotspots at this time. All of these services and more can be accessed online at libweb.slcc.edu. You can also call them at (801) 957-4602, or you can drop in and visit your local campus library during business hours.

New Student Association President's plans.

Erin Sanders

Contributing Writer

When Aynoa Rincon saw the opportunity to become the only woman to run for Student Association President, she wasted no time creating a dynamic campaign which led her to win this year's seat. The Venezuelan native is making her voice heard not only across campus – but across the state of Utah.

As student Association President, Rincon has an impressive list of goals and responsibilities she is in charge of this year.

"I think the leadership that we have in the school starting with President Huftalin is open to receiving any feedback from students," Rincon says. "The responsibility is on me to talk to students and keep myself updated with what's going on around campus. I'm a liaison between students and administration."

Rincon is confident in being able to get her voice heard on a state or higher level for the institution that caters to more than 60,000 students each year. "We are also wanting to focus on student involvement as well as food and security which is on a national platform," she says.

Being a part of the Utah Student Association (USA), Rincon meets monthly with student association presidents from across the state to discuss issues and solutions for each university and campus.

Rincon wants students to be involved with school activities whether that be clubs, the Thayne Center, Multicultural affairs or anything else. The Student Association committee is one place to start and is always after student involvement.

"I believe if you want to make a change, you need to make your voice heard. What better way to get started than within your school community? This allows you to grow professionally and personally."

The 19-year old who has a passion for economics and politics also has a love for soccer, cooking and spending time with her friends and family who have just made the journey to the U.S. only two months ago.

"Before my family got here a couple months ago, I was here alone," Rincon adds, "so I try and spend a lot of my time with them."

She plans on transferring to the University of Utah to pursue a degree in International Politics.

To get involved with SLCC organizations, visit the SLCC website under clubs and organizations or online at the Thayne Center website.

Five apps to keep productivity at max.

Camryn Jensen

Contributing Writer

Apps have become a huge part of our daily lives. We use them multiple times a day and they can be very useful to us as well, especially if you are a college student. I have discovered that there a lot of apps that are useful to SLCC students. These are the top five apps for SLCC students.

5. Amazon Mobile: If you don't have a car or another way of getting around, or if you're just lazy, the Amazon mobile app is for you. They sell everything from school supplies to college textbooks for cheap. If you want to get a good deal on your expensive textbook, this is the app for you.

4. Mint: Mint is a free app that helps you practice managing your money. It lets you view your all of your finances and see where your money is going. It will help you manage your money very easily.

3. Ihomework2: If you need a place to keep track of all of your assignments, exam schedules and coursework, then this is the app for you. Ihomework2 makes it easy to keep track of everything so that you never miss an assignment or test again. You can also set reminders for when your assignments are due.

2. EasyBib: Do you always struggle with your bibliography sources? If so, EasyBib is the app for you. EasyBib will give you the right citation for whatever source you are quoting and it will tailor to your citation needs.

1. Canvas: Canvas is the most useful app for students here at SLCC. Not only are your classes in one easy place, you can also check to see when your assignments are due and keep up with the class requirements!

So many apps, so little time.

More than just games.

Make your apps work for you
