Controversial commentator Mara Liasson speaks at SLCC

Aaron Martinez

Contributing Writer

Salt Lake Community College hosted its Tanner Forum on Social Ethics with Mara Liasson on November 8 at SLCC's South City Campus in the Grand Theatre.

Mara Liasson is a national political correspondent for National Public Radio (NPR). She can be heard on All Things Considered, Morning Edition, and is a contributor at Fox News Channel. Liasson will be investigating how people currently consume news as well as the concept of the freedom of the press, and the recent successes and failures of the media.

Kailey, a student majoring in communication, stated, "I am excited to attend the forum. I am interested in NPR and talk radio, so I would like to hear more of her experience in that,"

SLCC student, Ali Brown, was also interested in seeing Liasson speak.

"I listen to NPR everyday and won't be disappointed in learning more about the topic Mara Liasson will be presenting," says Brown.

While a majority of the sample of students surveyed said they were attending, one student, Maison Evensen, says he did not attend the Tanner Forum on Social Ethics.

"Honestly, I am not very familiar with Mara Liasson. I do however think ethics are important and I never get my news from Facebook anyway," says Evensen.

Evensen did think this would be a great discussion to attend, but just wasn't able to go due to his work schedule.

The event provided an opportunity for students, staff, faculty and the community to gather for thoughtful examination of critical issues in contemporary social ethics. Other topics discussed were determining what is "fake" news versus accurate news, and where to locate appropriate sources of news besides on social media.

Great American Smoke Out aims for smoke-free campus

Dean Steed

Contributing Writer

The Great American Smoke Out is an educational gathering that gives facts and information to students about smoking, as well as helping to make Salt Lake Community College a smoke-free campus.

The Great American Smoke Out took place Thursday, November 9 at the Taylorsville Redwood Campus, with the purpose of encouraging students to quit smoking not just cigarettes, but e-cigarettes as well. The goal was not to look down upon smokers or tobacco users, but to educate them on the health risks associated with smoking. There were tables of information along with healthcare providers, not only to give facts, but to aid anyone who wanted to quit and make healthier choices.

"I don't smoke but have a few friends who do," says Tonya, a student checking out the displays. "If I can give them some tips for quitting, maybe it will help them."

The event was put on by the SLCC Student Association and the Center for Health and Counseling, with the primary goal of making SLCC a tobacco-free campus. The organizers felt that this goal would benefit all students, ensure there is less second-hand smoke around campuses, and less cigarette butts to clean up as well. SLCCSA stressed they want all students to be aware of the dangers of tobacco use and be the healthiest they can be.

If you would like to quit and want more information, you can contact the SLCC Center for Health and Counseling Clinic at (801) 957-4268. You can also visit smokefree.gov, tobaccofree.org, and waytoquit.com.

While often touted as a safer and cleaner alternative to smoking, chew is often just as cancer- and habit-forming.

A CHARITABLE BALL: DANCE COMPANY'S FALL GATHERING

Dean Steed

Staff Writer

It's finally time for the Fall Dance Gathering and Food Drive at Salt Lake Community College. The gathering is a celebration of the end of a semester and all the hard work to give back to our community.

The Fall Dance Gathering will be held this week, November 17 & 18, at 7:30 pm in the Grand Theater on the South City Campus. The interim director of the SLCC dance company, Erica Womack, has put this show together, which is sure to delight one and all who attend.

This event has multiple choreographers that worked on the routines performed, along with various dance companies participating. To name a few, Municipal Valley Company as well as Rosie's Company will be present. The different forms of dance being performed include tap, modern, and a little of everything in between.

Lauren Reynolds, of the SLCC Dance Company, said, "Rosie's Company will be performing an African piece that will correspond with ours. That is a fun piece."

The SLCC Dance Company asks all attendees to bring non-perishable food items to donate to the SLCC Bruin Pantry. Admission with a student ID and two pieces of non-perishables will get you free entry to the performance. Without the donation of food, the cost of tickets is 5 dollars for students and 10 dollars for others. So save some greenbacks, contribute to a good cause in the process, and enjoy an excellent dance performance in doing so.

The holidays are right around the corner and are a time that students and families need our help the most. Donating food to the Bruin Pantry is a great way we can help during this holiday season. In addition to donating at the Fall Dance Gathering, food drop-offs are located throughout campus. You can also donate directly to the Bruin Pantries located at the South City and Taylorsville Redwood campuses, in rooms 1-061D and STC 015, respectively.

Josh Heredia, a dancer with SLCC Dance Company, said, "They have been training hard to bring their best performance possible for everyone to enjoy."

The SLCC Dance Company would also like to invite anyone who would like to join the company to audition for the spring semester. Auditions are being held on December 8 2017, from noon to 4 pm in room 2-134 on the South City Campus. Men and women are welcome. Anyone auditioning must have previous dance experience and be registered at SLCC. Partial tuition waivers are available as well.

Make sure you mark November 17 & 18 at 7:30 pm on the calendar and enjoy a fantastic show performed by SLCC's most talented dancers, all while helping the Bruin Pantry fill its shelves for the holiday season. Get your tickets the day of the show at the Grand Theater box office located at 1575 S. State St, or call (801) 957-3322.

MAKE YOUR NEXT MOVE YOUR BEST MOVE: TRANSFER TO WESTMINSTER

WESTMINSTER COLLEGE

About 30% of our entering undergraduates are transfer students, which means you'll be part of our campus community right from the start.

801.832.2200 | WESTMINSTERCOLLEGE.EDU/TRANSFER

Altitude adjustment: out-of-state students at SLCC

Matt McPherson

Contributing Writer

Moving can be stressful, but also exciting. According to melissadata.com, almost eight million Americans move to a new state each year and people between the ages of 18-34 make up the majority of that number.

Salt Lake City is becoming a more popular place for young people to move. In addition to being the headquarters for the LDS Church, Utah boasts five National Parks, views of gorgeous mountains from pretty much anywhere, and a booming tech industry. Add all these factors together, and Utah is slowly becoming the fastest growing state. There are many nuances when moving to a new town, especially Salt Lake. It can take time to find your way around the grid system of the Salt Lake City streets, which Utah natives seems to find so easy. For example, 3rd means 300 and 11th means 1100.

"The hardest part about moving to SLC is learning the layout of the city and adjusting to the grid system. I speak English although, with my east coast accent it's hard for people to understand," says Salt Lake Community College student, Tonye Bob-Manuel.

Bob-Manuel moved here in 2014 from Rhode Island, where he had lived his entire life. His plan was to attend school at the University of Utah, but came to SLCC when he found out about the film program.

95% of SLCC's student body is made up of Utah residents, and though it only takes a year to become a resident, that can seem like a long time when paying out-of-state tuition.

Bob-Manuel said that he misses the mixture of people and culture back on the east coast, as does SLCC student, Alexis Ahlzadeh, who moved from Atlanta in 2015, where she had spent her entire life up until that point.

"The second I land back in Atlanta, I remember all the other groups of people that just don't exist in Salt Lake," says Ahlzadeh.

The adjustments of moving to a new town can be made easier by knowing someone in the area.

"A couple of friends from work here really helped me adjust," says Bob-Manuel.

"I met a girl who grew up in Atlanta right near me, and now we are really good friends. She helped me register at SLCC and now is helping me register at the U. She also taught me how to ski," says Ahlzadeh. "I miss my family. I visit home at least a few times a year and always on holidays."

The weather can be a shock to Utah newcomers. Winters are bitter cold with a lot of snow, while the summers can be uncomfortably hot.

"The hardest part was adjusting to the cold. I was freezing the first winter I spent out here and was not prepared with the right boots or jackets at all. I spent all winter with wet feet. It was miserable," says Ahlzadeh. "I love the winters now, surprisingly."

Some from out-of-state say they plan to move after being in Salt Lake for a little bit.

"I graduate next year and if I find a job here, maybe I'd stay a few years, but the most would be 5 years," Bob-Manuel.

Newcomers waiting to become a resident should take advantage of the opportunity to explore the new terrain and try new things.

"Salt Lake is the most beautiful place I've ever lived and I love it! I wouldn't want to live anywhere else." says Ahlzadeh. "I love that I can drive 20 minutes in any direction and hit the mountains. My life is full of hiking, rock climbing, skiing, and camping - it's awesome."

Five activities for easing Thanksgiving family friction

Christopher Toney-El

Opinion Writer

Thanksgiving is coming up and as much as we enjoy Thanksgiving food, we don't always appreciate visiting relatives. But if you're stuck in a bad situation, why not make the best of it. Here are five things you and your family can do on Thanksgiving to truly appreciate the holiday:

Macy's Thanksgiving Parade

The Thanksgiving Macy's parade is a tradition in some households. The parade itself always has new floats and popular singers to perform on top of those floats. From watching as a kid to watching as a college student, the Macy's Thanksgiving Day Parade is both relaxing and exciting. Macy's also saves the best for last. Seeing Santa at the end of the parade brings joy to most every kid watching the spectacle.

Netflix

Netflix has many holiday themed movies that can easily distract your younger siblings, cousins or even loud adults. Netflix is great way to binge watch or keep the younger family members busy while the feast is still cooking.

Select a movie everyone can agree on and try to enjoy the company you're with. If no one can agree on a movie, the second season of "Stranger Things" has just come out so it's a great time to introduce the show to everyone there and get them addicted too.

Just Dance

"Just Dance" is an interactive dancing game that will have the whole family active and laughing. The video game can be played on PS3, PS4, the Nintendo Switch or an Xbox One. Besides keeping everyone off their phones, you'll see who can truly 'bust a move' in your family.

Snapchat

Certain families have issues with cell-phones during the holidays, but a good way to have fun this Thanksgiving is to take a selfie with grandma using one of Snapchat's various filters. The creative filters that snapchat has will bring your younger relatives into tears of laughter. Snapchat also doubles as the family pictures your mother always wants before the relatives have to leave.

Playing Uno

Try playing "Uno" with the family this year. As much as some of our families can be competitive, "Uno" is a great way to enjoy each other's company. The card game can be played with up to 10 people. The joy of Uno is hitting that one family member you dislike with a 'Draw 4' card.

The game of "Uno" also works to keep your cousins and siblings out of the way of 'grown folk' conversations. This way no younger relatives will hear any inappropriate conversations or jump into a conversation they were not invited to.

Charlie Brown in some form or another has appeared in the Macy's Parade for fifteen years, is beloved by millions, and definitely isn't eerie to see floating down sixth avenue.
