SLCC encourages creative writers to create stories for youth

Hannah Kalmar

Contributing Writer

Crafting a children's book may seem like an easy task at first thought, but many skills go into creating a successful and creative story. Here is an opportunity to learn the techniques necessary to make your own story ideas thrive and, who knows, maybe even get published one day.

The Children's Books workshop is a two-part workshop that provides information on how to engage young readers. Ranges of genres for young readers will be explored—everything from magazine articles to picture books.

"The Children's Books workshop is a fantastic opportunity for people interested in writing for kids to begin exploring the world of children's literature," says Ashley McFarland, a Writing Assistant here at SLCC. "Whether you want to write for the kids in your own life, or aspire to publish, this workshop will help you along the way."

McFarland coordinates off-site and youth programming, and will be facilitating the workshop. She is even working on a children's book of her own—an ideal teacher to get tips and knowledge from.

"People should take advantage of this workshop because we're going to discuss useful strategies and tips for writing for children, and participants will have a chance to share their own work and receive feedback from the group," McFarland reveals. "Additionally, we'll briefly discuss basic guidelines for publication."

Tanner Thacker, a student here at SLCC planning on graduating this upcoming Fall semester, is transferring to Utah Valley University and is seeking a degree in Business.

"I actually have always thought about writing a children's story book because I have some crazy good ideas and it seems to be pretty easy," Thacker states. "Do I have any idea how to begin writing them? No. That's why I would be interested in learning some ways to make my ideas come to life."

The workshop takes place on March 14th and 21st from 6-8 PM. It is located at the Community Writing Center at 210 E 400 S, Salt Lake City in Suite 8. There is a fee of $20 and registration is required. You can register in person at the CWC or online at https://epay.slcc.edu/C20011_ustores/web/classic/product_detail.jsp?PRODUCTID=1887.

Learn new writing techniques and brush up on old ones, this event is one you don't want to miss.

The Community Writing Center holds a variety of writing workshops, including the Children's Book Workshop and many more.

A story of love, passion and betrayal visits The Grand

Dean Steed

Staff Writer

Spring is almost upon us. The temperatures rising, the birds are coming back, and flowers are ready to bloom. So, what better way to celebrate this time of year than taking in a show at The Grand Theater?

Salt Lake Community College students have a theater right here on our campus to enjoy, with top quality shows and performances. “The Grand Theater” has had a plethora of performances, with such plays as: “A Streetcar Named Desire”, “West Side Story” and “The Sound of Music.” There is always something happening at “The Grand”, and, as luck would have it, they are gearing up to open a classic play sure to be a hit. The play in question is “A View from the Bridge”, an Arthur Miller play.

“If you love the theater and don’t want to pay several hundreds of dollars the Grand is the place to go its affordable and high quality,” says Steven, who has been to the theater for multiple plays.

“A View from the Bridge” is set in the 1950s America-Italian immigrant community next to the Brooklyn Bridge. This story is a drama consisting of love, passion, betrayal and even tragedy that keeps you on the edge of your seat. “The View from the Bridge” is an award winning must see, so don’t miss out on the chance to see a high-quality show for an affordable price right here on campus.

The play runs from March 22 to April 7. SLCC students get a free ticket with their OneCard. Tickets are on sale now from $9.00 to $23.00 and are available through The Grand Theaters box office. You can come to the box office at 1575 South State Street Salt Lake City, UT 84115 or call them at (801) 957-3322 or go to their website grandtheatrecompany.com

The Grand does productions quite often, with “A View from the Bridge” and “Spamalot” finishing out the current season.

Get your tickets as soon as possible, because “A View from the Bridge” starts in one week.

Men's and Women's basketball crowned Region champs

Chris Frkovich

Staff Writer @chrisfrkovich

The Bruin Men's Basketball team got who they wanted in the Region 18 Tournament final in rival College of Southern Idaho (CSI), and sophomore guard, Bushmen Ebet delivered the shot of a lifetime to edge the Golden Eagles 87-86.

Last year, the Bruins lost to CSI in the first round of the Region 18 Tournament. On Feb. 15 the Golden Eagles handed the Bruins their third loss of the season in an overtime thriller.

After smashing Snow College in their own house 93-67, SLCC got a chance to avenge their last loss against CSI and came away with the victory in a back-and-forth game in Ephraim, UT.

Sophomore forward, Christian Gray, led the way for the Bruins with 21 points on 10-14 shooting. Gray earned Region 18 Tournament MVP for his performance.

"It was big for us. Kind of like a little mountain, little goal to set. Because we're two good teams, we battle. So, it was good to come out on top," says Gray.

When asked what was going through his mind when Ebet was putting up the would-be game-winner, Gray remembered thinking "We're going to 'Hutch.' Bucket. It was good."

By "Hutch," Gray is referring to Hutchinson, Kansas, where the NJCAA National Tournament will be played Mar. 19-24.

Coming off a big game against Snow College in which he had 16 points, Ebet came through for his team to extend the season. With an 86-84 lead, CSI missed their second of two free-throws. Freshman Matt Lindsey pushed the ball up the floor and found Ebet for the downtown dagger with just six seconds left on the clock. CSI put up an unsuccessful shot as time expired to end the game.

"It is the biggest shot of my young career. During the game, I missed a couple threes [pointers] before it. I guess I had to save the best shot for the last shot," says Ebet.

Just like the Men's team, the Women's Basketball team played CSI in the final of the Region 18 Tournament. Though a game-winning shot was not necessary, the women were also crowned region champs with a final score of 79-70.

The Lady Bruins celebrate their tournament win after topping the College of Southern Idaho in the championship game.

Once again, it was sophomore guard, Tia Hay, leading the way for the Bruins with 32 points on 12-17 shooting. Hay scored 66 points in two games earning tournament MVP and NJCAA National Player-of-the-week honors.

Hay is quickly becoming one of SLCC's most decorated athletes. She was also named the 2017-2018 Scenic West Athletic Conference Player-of-the-Year and was recently selected to the Women's Basketball Coaches Association (WBCA) All-American team as an Honorable Mention.

The Bruin Women's Basketball team (26-5) qualified for the NJCAA National Tournament in Lubbock, TX for a remarkable fifth straight year after becoming back-to-back Region 18 Champions.

Last year marked the first Final Four appearance for SLCC but they fell short in the semi-final game to eventual champion Gulf Coast Community College. GCCC will be the two-time defending national champions entering the tournament this year.

Both Bruins teams found out their fate for the tournaments on Monday. #SelectionMonday, which awards each team their seed in the tournament, took place on March 12 via livestream on the first-ever NJCAA Selection Show.

The men's team (29-3) was awarded the #4 seed and a first-round bye for the 2018 NJCAA Division I Men's Basketball Championship. The women's team (26-5) also found out their seed in the NJCAA Division I Women's Basketball Championship. The Lady Bruins will be the #9 seed this year.

Before heading off to play in the nationals, both teams will attend the Bruin Send-Off, a free event taking place on March 15 from 11am-1pm in the Student Event Center at the Taylorsville-Redwood campus. Free food, minute-to-win-it games, and many more fun festivities will be taking place. Come wish our Bruins basketball teams luck before their road to the championships!

Award winning poet speaks to students on Native American issues

Kailey Null

Contributing Writer

On February 22, 2018 Salt Lake Community College held a reading and book signing featuring Layli Long Soldier at the South City campus.

Layli Long Soldier graduated with a Bachelor's in Fine Arts from the Institute of American Indian Arts, and further earned her Master's at Bard College. Soldier is an Oglala Lakota poet, writer, artist, as well as a contributing editor of the journal, "Drunken Boat". Soldier is also the recipient of the 2015 National Artist Fellowship (NCAF), a 2015 Lannan Literary Fellowship, a 2016 Whiting Award, and the 2018 PEN Jean Stein Book Award.

The reading, held in the multipurpose room, was packed with a full audience. Listeners were excited and eager to hear from Layli Long Soldier. Adjunct Professor Brenda Sieczkowski, who teaches Imaginative writing at SLCC, attended the reading as well as having dinner with Soldier after presenting her work.

"I was thrilled that SLCC got Layli Long Soldier to come and read since I think she's one of the contemporary poets who's doing the most exciting work with Poetry that's both political, but also innovative and artistic in the way that she writes her material," Sieczkowski stated Soldier discussed the injustices, deaths, and discrimination the Native American tribes have faced in our history, as well as in present time. Her most famous work titled "Whereas," confronts the United States Government's apologies to Native American peoples and tribes. The Apology, written when President Obama was in office, was never spoken publicly and or directed to any Native American Tribes. She discussed that this apology sparked her research and fully inspired her words.

Soldier's most recent book, "Whereas", came out in 2017.

Show that you care, see a movie that matters at SLCC

Camryn Jensen

Staff Writer

Alliance for a Better Utah, and Salt Lake Community College SACM proudly present a movie series with a cause. Every other Thursday at the South City Campus in the film screening room students can attend a free documentary of a movie that has an important cause. This week was the documentary “Trashed”, with Jeremy Irons.

“Trashed” is an environmental film written and directed by British film maker, Candida Brady. The movie follows Jeremy Irons as he investigates the global impact of humanity’s wasteful consumerism and pollution. The documentary looks at the risks to the food chain, the environment and how polluted it really is. The scenes that stood out the most were when he visited Sidon, Lebanon, which has a 40-meter mountain of trash that is affecting the Eastern Mediterranean Sea. Another scene involved the Jakarta and Ciliwung River in Indonesia that is used by many villagers and is polluted with garbage, animal carcasses and waste.

About 12 people attended the screening and there was a discussion afterwards.

The Alliance For A Better Utah has been partnering with the school to host this series for three semesters.

“It allows students to get together and watch a movie about a topic that matters,” says Josh Elstein, SACM Program Manager.

The last movie in the series is the documentary I Am Not Your Negro, a radical up to the minute examination of race in America and is a journey into black history that connects the past of the Civil Rights Movement to the present of the Black Lives Matter Movement. This screening will be on Thursday, March 15 at 6:00 p.m. on the South City Campus in the film screening room. There will be free parking after 5:00 p.m. with kiosk code SLFILM18 in lot 4 at the east parking lot of the South City Campus
